

Joseph M. Kampf
President and Chief Executive Officer
Anteon International Corporation

Mr. Kampf assumed the role of President and Chief Executive Officer of Anteon International Corporation in April of 1996. Anteon is regarded as a premier provider of information technology solutions, and systems engineering and integration services to the U.S. Federal Government, including the Department of Defense, the intelligence community, and civilian agencies. With more than 100 locations worldwide, the company's markets also include state and local customers and foreign governments. During his more than seven years at the helm, Anteon has grown annual revenue from $109 million to over $1 billion in 2003. In March 2002, years of strategic growth culminated in one of the year's most successful initial public offerings, when Anteon International began trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

From 1986 to 1993 he was an executive with the Penn Central Corporation, first serving as Senior Vice President of its 6,500 employee Federal Systems Group, and subsequently as Executive Vice President of its $400 million revenue operating subsidiary. Before Penn Central, he was an executive officer of Adena Corporation from 1980 to 1985, raising European investment funds for development and exploration of petroleum reserves in the continental United States. In 1972, Mr. Kampf joined billionaire Daniel K. Ludwig's global organization where he developed strategies for foreign investments as diverse as liquefied natural gas projects in Java; international hotels; and a forest products company in the Amazon jungle, where from 1973 to 1980, he served as chief strategy and financial officer for the $1 billion development project.

Prior to joining Mr. Ludwig, Mr. Kampf spent several years with Schenley Industries and from 1968 to 1972, he developed and took public, a chain of computer training centers in the U.S. and South America.

Throughout his career, he has focused on operations, change management, strategic planning, financial services, and mergers and acquisitions. In his current role with Anteon, his team has completed and fully integrated seven acquisitions, leading to a high double-digit organic growth rate. He was the recipient of the 2002 KPMG High Tech Entrepreneur Award, which recognizes significant contributions to the advancement of technology in the greater Washington, D.C. area. In 2003, he received the Greater Washington Government Contractor Executive of the Year Award.

Mr. Kampf holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Economics from the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill. He currently serves as Chairman of the Professional Services Council.